1. Adelphia Communications Cases (Concept or Theory : Related parties and unrecorded liabilities)

Adelphia Communications, the sixth largest cable television provider in the USA, was the subject of a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and federal grand jury investigation into its finances as its accounting practices were questioned. The company was founded and managed by John Rigas and his family.

Adelphia had fraudulently excluded from the Company's annual and quarterly consolidated financial statements portions of its bank debt, totaling approximately US$ 2.3 billion in undisclosed, off-balance-sheet bank debt as of 31 December 2001, by systematically recording those liabilities on the books of unconsolidated affiliates which were controlled by the Rigas family (Rigas Entities). They included in those financial statements a footnote disclosure implicitly misrepresenting that such portions had been included on Adelphia's balance sheet (SEC, 2002). Adelphia, and its executives created sham transactions backed by fictitious documents to give the false appearance that Adelphia had actually repaid debts, in truth, it had simply shifted them to unconsolidated Rigas-controlled entities.

Since at least 1998, Adelphia used fraudulent misrepresentations and omissions of, material fact to conceal rampant self-dealing by the Rigases, the family which founded and ran Adelphia, including use of Adelphia funds to : pay for vacation properties and New York City apartments; develop a golf course mostly owned by the Rigases; and purchase over US$ 772 million of Adelphia shares of common stock and over US$ 563 million of Adelphia notes for the Rigases' own (SEC, 2002).

In addition to Adelphia's own business operations, it also managed and maintained virtually every aspect of the Rigas Entities that owned and operated cable television systems, including maintaining their books and records on a general ledger system shared with Adelphia and its subsidiaries. Rigas Entities did not reimburse or otherwise compensate Adelphia for these services.

Adelphia and the Rigas Entities, including those that are in businesses unrelated to cable systems, participated jointly in a cash management system operated by Adelphia (the "Adelphia CMS"). Adelphia, its subsidiaries, and Rigas Entities all deposited some or all of their cash generated or otherwise obtained from their operations, borrowings and other sources in the Adelphia CMS, withdrew cash from the
